Cave Re-appointed to
State Museum Commission

William F. “Billy” Cave has been re-appointed to the board of directors of the South Carolina State Museum, known as the South Carolina Museum Commission, by Gov. Mark Sanford.

Cave is the managing principal of Reliance Trust Company in Atlanta. He has been in banking since 1960, spending 30 of those years in New York.

Cave is an experienced volunteer and gives his time to a variety of local boards and commissions. He is a board member for the Pawley’s Island Festival of Music and Art; Georgetown County Alcohol and Drug Abuse Commission; a former member of the citizens advisory committee of the Hollings Cancer Center; and a former member of the Board of Visitors for Coastal Carolina University’s Wall School of Business.

In addition, Cave is past chairman of the Georgetown County Cultural Council and a past member of Tidelands Hospice. He also is the president of the Georgetown area USC Alumni Association and a former board member of Children’s Specialized Hospital in Westfield, N.J.

A native of Walterboro, Cave attended Furman University and received a degree in political science from the University of South Carolina. He also was graduated from the South Carolina School of Banking.

Cave now lives at DeBordieu Colony outside of Georgetown with his wife Nancy and the family dogs Pongo and Lady.

“Mr. Cave has been an active and valued member of the commission since his original appointment, and we are pleased to have his experience and wise counsel for another term,” said Museum Commission Chairman Gray Culbreath.
