The Dennis Community Development Corporation of Lee County (DCDC) is a 501(C)(3) non profit community-based cultural organization located at The Dennis Center on West Cedar Lane in Bishopville. Its primary mission is to provide social, educational and cultural enhancement to the quality of life for the people of Bishopville and Lee County. The DCDC is the caretaker organization for Historic Dennis High School, aka The Dennis Center. It is a national landmark building, and the historic school house is officially listed in the National Registry of Historic Places. The building has since served as The Dennis Center for community, social and cultural affairs. It serves as a central meeting place for residents and cultural organizations throughout the Midlands of South Carolina. It serves as a safe and secure meeting place for local weddings, birthday parties, baby showers, high school class reunions and other important social, educational and cultural events.

Several years ago, a local church in Bishopville experienced an emergency situation where they could no longer use the church for services. The pastor contacted The Dennis Center and arrangements were made to hold Sunday worship services at The Dennis Center until such time it was safe for the congregation to reconvene at the church. The Dennis Center has served as a venue where local churches and charities have held food banks and clothing give ways to families in need.
